Consumer Participation in Mental Health - Consumer Advisor (District)

‘Consumer advisors: providing the link between services and consumers’

‘Consumer advisors: providing the link between services and consumer’

Why Have Consumer Participation in Mental Health?

Consumers are the past, the present and the future of Mental Health, Addiction and Intellectual Disability Services.

Consumer participation is having input into decision making for mental health services at different levels. The individual level is the personal experience of mental health services. The organisational level is input into provider agencies and organisations. The policy level is contributing to policy development.

Consumers involvement at every level of mental health services is to ensure the services are responsive to the needs of individuals.

As consumer advisors we provide the consumers' perspective to the Mental Health, Addictions and Intellectual Disability Services provided by the Southern District Health Board in Invercargill, Southland, Dunedin, Balclutha, Oamaru and Central Otago

What Does a Consumer Advisor Do?

The Consumer Advisor promotes and facilitates consumer participation, leadership and perspective in planning, delivery of services, review and service development to ensure that services are responsive to the needs of individual service users in the Southern DHB for all mental health, addictions and intellectual disabilities. They co-ordinate and support, with other consumer organisations, the development of a strong active voice in the district. Ensure the service has effective feedback processes from service consumers to continuously improve service delivery.

This is achieved by

- Developing and coordinating effective links and networks with relevant consumers, community groups and organisations.
- Supporting the ongoing development of consumer advisory groups across Southern DHB.

- Interpret and clarify needs on behalf of consumers with health professionals ensuring services are adequately provided.
 - Support and coordinate the provision of consumer input into planning groups as required, with emphasis on the impact and outcomes of services on clients.
 - Assist with education regarding the impact of psychiatric disabilities and the needs of consumers.
 - Liaise with NGO consumer groups and update on developments in other services.
 - Involvement in audit services and incident progress regarding consumers
- Utilise the expertise of Māori health when Māori input or representation is required.

This is not an advocacy role, but if advocacy is required the advisors will support consumers to access this. Local advocacy services include:
