It starts with compassionate care

Healthvision has been caring for people in their homes since 1999, and our purpose has always remained the same: To make a meaningful difference in people's day-to-day lives through quality home and community healthcare.

Your partner in community health

Healthvision has been leading the way in community health services for 25 years, bringing together expert care with a compassionate approach that leads to positive outcomes for you, your whānau and your community.

From humble beginnings...

Established in 1999 by Sue Doherty, a registered nurse who identified a need for quality and responsive home-based care services, Healthvision continues to support grassroots action and values community-based and family-orientated healthcare.

Combining services across home support, nursing, and rehabilitation teams, we deliver efficient, integrated healthcare to maximise wellbeing and independence outcomes for service users.

Our services

We offer a range of services spanning home support, nursing, wound care, rehabilitation, physiotherapy, health and wellbeing, with collective, integrated services to ensure continuity of care.

Home and Community Support

We offer varying levels of home care services such as personal care, meal preparation, outings, household management, and live-in support for more complex needs and serious injuries.

Nursing

We plan our care with you and offer a personalised service. Nursing services include free ACC burn and wound care, serious injury support, and 24/7 clinical care.

Physiotherapy

Healthvision's Physiotherapy and Wellbeing clinics have a team of health professionals who are dedicated to providing collective health and wellness services for individuals and corporates.

Rehab Services

With a dedicated team of physiotherapists, occupational therapists, exercise physiologists, psychologists and rehab coaches, we help keep you moving. We assist with ACC assessments and offer specialist neurological rehabilitation.

Health and Wellbeing

We work collaboratively with people to improve their overall health and wellbeing as well as businesses seeking to promote a healthier workplace.
